Overall impression “Ready to Fall”, by Mark Hildreth. You’ve a good feel here. It’s reminiscent of several big pop stars, and yet you definitely have your feel. Your courage and the depth of your passion truly reveal themselves here. Beautiful.
How the song would work for Film & TV This will work for both TV and Film, with a focus on romance and personal triumph; Both mainstream and Indie films, including ending credits.
Chord choice What a generous range you covered; bringing your listeners along both slowly and up tempo; This is fantastic composition all around. You sent me off on my own emotional journey just while writing this review.
Lyrics Your lyrics are intelligent and still heartwarming. It’s very easy for us (the listeners) to develop our own meaning behind the lines, as we do with our favorites artists; applying our favorite songs to our own lives. We make them personal, and that, Mark, is when an artist becomes great. Thank you.
Song Structure You’ve chosen an undulant rhythm, building in progression to rockin peaks, and dropping so softly, over and over.
Memorability Yes. The combination of your vocal quality, the instrumentation, and the entire emotional journey you designed makes this song remain with us long after the song has ended. “When you’re ready to go” is nice hook line; so many different meanings can be drawn from it.
Recording This is a good, clear recording.
